

Environmental policy

DREWSEN SPEZIALPAPIERE GmbH & Co. KG, Lachendorf is an independent, family-owned company which was founded in 1538. Today we are an internationally active manufacturer of speciality papers.

We are committed to environmental protection, and are aware that long-term success can only be achieved through a responsible and sustainable environmental policy. Our commitment to environmental protection extends to all areas of our company. However, our environmental management system also takes external factors and influences into account.

Compliance with legal requirements

- We fulfil our legal obligations in environmental protection.

Environmentally conscious behaviour

- We minimise the environmental impact of our production through continuous improvements.
- We endeavour to reduce waste, emissions and the specific consumption of water and energy.
 - Every employee has a personal obligation to minimise the environmental impact of their work.
- We carry out regular reviews to continuously improve operational environmental protection and our management systems. In the event of any deviation, we intervene with suitable corrective measures.
- Wherever possible, all paper waste generated during paper production is returned to the production process.

Training and communication

- We promote the skills and awareness of our environmental responsibility to all employees of the company through information, continuous training and further education.
- Company representatives advise and monitor employees in all matters relating to environmental protection. They report directly to the management.
